

THE GREYHOUND

PROTECTING YOU
FROM BEARS
SINCE 1827

www.loyolagreyhound.com

VOLUME 79, ISSUE XX.V

NOW WITH JOURNALISTIC INTEGRITY!

APRIL 1, 2006

WASTE!!!

PHOTO FOUND ON THE NEWS DESK COMPUTER

Sure the fireworks over Maryland Hall were pretty, but the cost wasn't.

College spends millions on Inauguration

By GIMPY
THAT DRUNK GIRL

The Administration has finally revealed that the College spent over $9.7 million on the Presidential Inauguration last semester.

The money spent on Inauguration came from a variety of sources, including student parking tickets, and a portion of sales on overpriced Sodexo food products. Most of the money however, came from the increased student tuition.

"We looked at our budget, realized we didn't have the funding we needed

ALEXA HOUSE/GREYHOUND

Armstrong.

Hardy not long for office

By SARY MOTT
SHE ALWAYS KNOWS THE DIRT

The SGA has taken the liberty of scheduling impeachment hearings for newly elected President Mike Hardy.

Hardy has yet to officially take office, but the SGA is assuming that, based on his similarity to California governor Arnold Schwarzenegger and the precedent set by past SGA presidents, he's doomed.

"If I know Hardy as well as I think I do, he will probably play too 'hardy' and be in trouble before the school year even starts," said an SGA insider close to Hardy.

and decided to increase our already high tuition so that we could afford it," said Marvin Racquetball.

Approximately $4.5 million of the money went to decorating Reitz Arena and dressing all members of the Processional in $2,000 robes.

"We are a fancy schmancy school and we really wanted this milestone in our College's history to prove that," said Jerry McDonald, the resident redhead who had input in the Inauguration planning sessions.

The fireworks set off on the roof of Maryland Hall cost the College a surprisingly low amount of only $400, but the rights to the cheesy, cliché songs that went along with them cost a whopping $2.3 million.

G-hound to request do-over 2005-06 lacking in tragedy, scandal

By PEDRO DAVIS
ESPN

Following a year rife with provocative and exceedingly newsworthy stories, the current staff of The Greyhound finds that this school year has left something to be desired. As a result, the board has resolved to repeat this academic year.

While headlines in 2004-05 revolved around scandal in prominent student organizations, drugs in residence halls, and the untimely passing of several members of the Loyola community, the Evergreen campus's primary news source has been handcuffed by things like Presidential Inaugurations -- small change for this group.

"I was really optimistic heading into this school year," Editor in Chief Terry Foy said. "We had a young group, but we had a lot of talent and I thought we could make some waves. The ball didn't bounce our way much and we had

"We questioned the cost of playing those songs over the loudspeakers the way we ended up doing and considered just asking Hootie and the Blowfish to come perform them instead," said McDonald. "But we knew that if there's one thing that makes fireworks in the Quad more fabulous, it's cliché songs."

In order to keep the residents of Homeland and Gallagher from complaining, the Administration paidoff each resident with $25 and a boxed lunch that is usually reserved for prospective student tours.

"We figured $25 and a boxed lunch should be enough to shut them up for at least a day or two," said Racquetball.

continued on page 23

a couple of calls that went against us. It just wasn't our year. So we're going to run it back."

Such a radical suggestion is unheard of around these parts, but The Greyhound editorial board seems committed to repeating this year. With only one senior in the starting lineup (and he isn't really entering the real world, anyway), the goal appears within reach.

"They're just so dedicated, that's what strikes me," moderator and Communications professor Kevin Atticks said.

Administrators have even started to take notice at this group's moxie, and wish they had been more stringently tested.

"When I think the pinnacle of journalism, I think The Greyhound," Loyola's shockingly genteel and astute Director of Public Relations Mark Kelly said.

Former Greyhound members disagree, however.

"These clowns ain't got nothin' on me," former Editor in Chief Mike Memoli said.

WBC finally arrives

By CARRIE BRADSHAW
RERUNS ON TBS

After nearly two months of anticipation, protestors from the Westboro Baptist Church finally made it to campus last week, armed with posters and hate but lacking a suitable reason for their tardiness.

"Well, we were on our way and then something, with this guy, our friend, we just couldn't make it," said Fred Phelps Jr., whose father is the Church's pastor.

Intending to speak out against the Spotlight Players' performance of "The Laramie Project," WBC protestors were met by an unexpected reaction upon their arrival.

"I don't get it, I at least thought they would call," "Laramie" director Doug Schultz said. "I mean I guess I really can't complain, they never said they wouldn't protest anywhere else."

Loyola's Department of Public Safety reported that no incidents occurred that a pint of Ben and Jerry's and a nice bath couldn't fix.

"I just never like to see any of my kids get hurt," Director of Public Safety Tim Fox said. "I heard that they weren't here because they were protesting a funeral at the Naval Academy, instead. For two months? Come on, I know what's going on here. What does the Naval Academy have that Loyola College doesn't?"

Phelps was quick to deny rumors that the WBC was spreading its hate elsewhere, however.

"I just really want Loyola to know that it's not them, it's us," Phelps said. "Really, it was this thing with this guy I know, from high school. We're really sorry."

Phelps promised to come protest the next controversial event at Loyola.

"I really want to make it up to everyone. We'll definately show up next time, and I promise I'll call as soon as I find the time," said Phelps.

Schultz reported running into members of the WBC coalition at a Starbuck's shortly before the hate group shoved off.

"It was a little awkward," he said. "I just hope we can be friends. The WBC really means a lot to me."

COURTESY OF WWW.BOYTECH.COM

This picture came from a Web site called www.boytech.com. I don't know what that means, but it deserves mention.

Angel to open Palooza

By JOE SOMEBODY
HE'S COOLER THAN YOU

Ashley Parker Angel has truly been there and back.

Formerly a lead singer in the late-90s pop group "O-Town," Angel now stars in his own reality show on MTV highlighting his return to stardom, as well as the trying path his life has taken since he fell from grace.

Since returning to the stage, Angel has shown himself to be a competent singer/songwriter, and his vocal and musical stylings provide a sterling complement to headliner Blues Traveler.

"I am so grateful to Loyola for not only the opportunity to work, but to open up for a legend like John Popper," Angel said. "After I saw him in 'Tommy Boy,' I knew I wanted to be famous. I wonder if he'll bring David Spade."

Members of the Student Government Association are "stoked" about Angel's signing.

"I think that Angel will bring a new angle to the lineup," Director of Social Affairs E. Gary Goatsback said. "I wasn't sold on his ability to appeal to the Loyola crowd, but he entered the Battle of the Bands and won fair and square, so our hands are kind of tied."

Popper put his sentiments more bluntly.

"This kid sucks," he said. "Skinny punk."

Angel's agent could not be reached for comment, because he does not have one. Angel did mention, however, that tips of canned food would be much appreciated.

INSIDE

Police Bladder ..... 2
Poor Content ..... all

On the Quad ..... 4
Thumz ..... 4

Crossword Puzzle...meh
Balloons ..... 3

Updated headlines on the web at
www.loyolagreyhound.com

Article no one will read

By Kit Fisto
MANY BOTHANS DIED REPORTING THIS STORY

The White House announced controversial plans Wednesday afternoon to declare a nationwide state of emergency and give President Bush special powers in order to crack down on terrorists operating in America.

The measure would have to be approved by the Senate, where the vote is expected to be tight. Majority Leader Bill Frist (R, Tenn.) has said that the Republicans will support "whatever the President sends my way." Democratic Minority Leader Harry Reid, of the Nevada system, has vowed to defeat the measure, threatening a filibuster.

"Begun, the filibuster has," intoned Reid. Attorney General Alberto Gonzalez defended the plan as constitutionally legitimate and within the scope of the Republic's power.

"Under galactic law, the Senate can vote to extend special emergency powers to the Supreme Chancellor...er...President," said Gonzalez. "Many presidents have done this in the past, including Nixon, Lincoln, and Burr. This is nothing new."

Watchdog groups like the ACLU, however, are watching the Administration like a watchdog. They are worried that the move will allow Bush to trample on Americans' civil liberties, which they have sworn to protect, hence the name American Civil Liberties Union.

Constitutional scholars nationwide have said that the measure would effectively make Bush an emperor, and violate the separation of powers. "A measure such as this would require, in no uncertain terms, a consolidation of the Republic into the First American Empire," said former policy insider Finis Valorum.

PHOTO COURTESY OF STARWARS.COM

Pictured here, Jedi Master Harry Reid uses "force-filibuster" to halt legislation in the Senate. Reid, one of the most respected Democrats, is over 800 years old.

Senator John Kerry, who saved 50 men in Vietnam and the Outer Rim Sieges, has come out strongly against voting to give Bush special powers.

"As a Vietnam and Clone War veteran, I cannot support this measure," said Kerry. "It's bantha fodder. It would violate the sanctity of the Senate."

In a statement to the press, Bush responded: "I am the Senate!"

The President continued: "If we are to defeat our enemies on the Axis of Evil—those on the Dark Side—we must have consolidated strength. After Sept. 11, our anger gave us focus. But the War on Terror wages on, and this demands that I make quick, rash decisions on a daily basis. These emergency powers will allow me to do so without the constraints of diplomacy and democracy," said Bush. "Plus, senators like Reid and Kerry are politicians; they are not to be trusted."

Dogs to hunt down cats, cats to save Newman

By DANIEL C. VERDEROSA, IV, Esq., D.D.S.
SIMPSON'S RIP-OFF

With the number of mice quickly outnumbering the number of students in Newman Towers, Student Life has decided to take an unprecedented action to rid the dorm of the vermin: introduce a community of cats to the building.

Loyola will purchase approximately 50 cats from local pet stores and allow them to reside in Newman, where they will theoretically eat the mice, which have been spotted not only in individual dorm rooms, but in Primo's as well.

"The cat initiative is a win-win situation for us," said Dean Sowd, lord of Newman Towers. "There was some concern that we might lose some cats to Primo's, but the guys working at the Chef's Table have promised us that won't be a problem."

When asked why the College had not chosen to use cats adopted from local shelters, which would be cheaper, Sowd replied,

"Adopt stray cats? C'mon, I think we can do a little better than that. I mean, this isn't Goucher."

Once the mouse threat has been eliminated, the plan will move into its second phase, which involves releasing 25 pit bulls into the Towers, which will eat the cats. Poisonous snakes will then be released to neutralize the dogs.

"The idea for the snakes came from the new Samuel L. Jackson movie "Snakes on a Plane." We are currently arranging to have some king cobras shipped over from India," said Sowd.

Planning beyond the cobra phase has yet to be completed, but it is believed that mongooses, the cobra's natural enemy, will be dispatched to kill the snakes.

Said Sowd: "Where does this plan end? I envision a period of time where Newman is inhabited by a small population of endangered mountain gorillas. The only logical step from there is to hire a hunter, like the guy from "Jumangi," to come in and take them out."

PHOTO COURTESY OF DREAMWORKS

Student Life plans to purchase cats and outfit them like this to solve the growing rodent problem in Newman Towers.

New house going up

Loyola's Office of Student Life approved a proposal last week granting a group of sophomores the opportunity to create a new special interest house called "Conveniento House."

Offering a venue for students with a shared interest in avoiding the hectic housing process to come together, Conveniento House is Spanish for "A Farce of the System Building."

"I think Conveniento House is a great opportunity to blah blah blah blah," assistant director of Student Life Sally Womansplain said.

Conveniento House will be located in rooms 501, 601, 701, 801, and 901 of Newman West and East, largely considered among the most desirable rooms on campus, and will offer a limited range of programming.

Among the events hosted by the house will be a gathering outside of Upper Primo's on the night of junior class housing registration, during which residents will point and laugh at the plight of those who adhered to the rules. Conveniento House will also host a viewing of "Schindler's List."

Year of the Continent announced for 2007

Rev. Brain Linnane, S.J., announced at a recent Loyola Conference that the College would be celebrating a "Year of the Continent" beginning in the fall of 2007. The theme will follow next year's planned Year of the City.

Among Linnane's first initiatives after arriving on campus, the Year of the City campaign aims to assimilate Loyola into its surrounding environment and vice versa, or something like that. Presumably, the Year of the Continent will have similar aims.

"I just think that there is so much we can learn from our neighbors in the northwestern hemisphere," Linnane said. "I, personally, have a particular affinity for St. Kitts and Nevis."

Early reports indicate that members of the Loyola community will take part in a hockey game versus the Canadian National team, jam out in Negril, as well as other Year of the Continent programming.

Biology Department breakthrough

A pair of seniors in the Biology Department have published a study linking symptoms associated with Acute Anxiety Disorder to prolonged drug abuse, especially crack cocaine.

Their article will appear in next quarter's issue of Nature.

Most popular stories @

LOYOLAGREYHOUND.COM

- ✓ Freshmen 15 resemble Freshmen 30
- ✓ Campus Police selling fake IDs
- ✓ Walks of Shame on the rise
- ✓ Bar hopping 101 added to course rotation
- ✓ Iraq Lecture Headline goes here here here

Campus Po Blo

Guess which one is fake. Do it.

Saturday, Dec. 11

Campus police were in Newman Towers West when they noticed the occupants of a room in Newman Towers West nude and covered with chocolate pudding. The carpet and walls were also covered with the pudding. Another room in NTW also had evidence of the same substance on the walls and floors. The on duty GRC informed the students they had two hours to clean the room and that she would return to check it. The students were told that it was doubtful that the carpet and walls could be cleaned and that they could possibly end up having to pay for the damage.

Saturday, Nov. 5

Campus police responded to Campion Tower for a reported injury. When they arrived they found a student, noticeably intoxicated, who had seriously burnt his tongue. The student communicated to the officers that he had burnt his tongue on a hot pocket. The officers offered to call an ambulance for the student, but he declined.

Thursday, Nov. 10

Campus police responded to a fire alarm at Bellarmine Hall. The officer met with a student who told the officer he had been cooking chicken in the oven and the alarm sounded. BCFD advised the officer to silence the alarm and open windows. The officer informed the student that he needed to clean the oven before cooking in it again. Two days later, the same student set off the fire alarm again, this time while cooking shrimp on the stove.

Thursday, Oct. 13

Campus police were contacted by the BCPD and told that a Loyola student had walked into Central Booking and proceeded to take her clothes off. BCPD said that when the student was confronted she stated that she just wanted to crawl into bed. Her actions led officers to believe she was under the influence, and upon arrival of campus police she stated that she thought she was in Butler Hall, and was unaware that she was at Central Booking. She stated that she had been at Hammerjack's with her roommates. She was taken back to Butler Hall to meet with the AD and her roommates stated that they had lost her and been unable to reach her.

BAD OPINIONS

APRIL 1, 2006

THE GREYHOUND

PAGE 3

— THE GREYHOUND EDITORIAL — Humorous Newsery

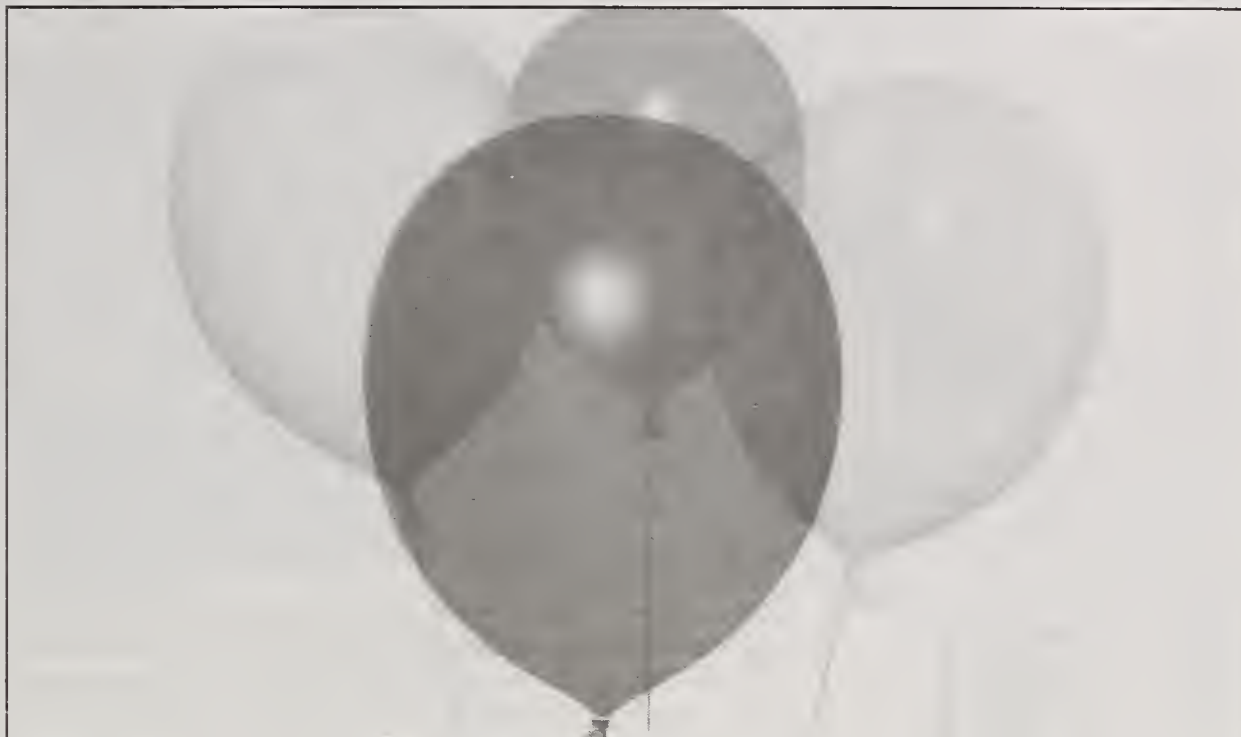

At this time, you may be saying to yourself, "Oh, it's an April Fool's issue, I get it." Well, not exactly. We were all kind of busy this week, and the issue got a little sloppy. Also, we keep getting interrupted by current and ex-SGA members who seem keen on roaming the campus at 2 a.m., feeling the need to stop by and disrupt us just as we're hitting our stride.

And people wonder why there is such animosity between The Greyhound and the SGA. But I digress.

We promise to do better next time. If we don't you can just go read the other campus newspaper serving the Evergreen community. Oh, wait, there isn't one. Deal with it.

And now, for your general betterment, we provide you with an exercise in concentration: Just stare at the white space below and wait for words to appear...

■ Yay! Balloons!

Problems of diversity solved with conformity

I've been reading in the paper a lot about the diversity problem on this campus. Well, here's what we do: Destroy it!

I demand a quick and final change in the student body. First and foremost we must create a dress code. All girls must wear North Face jackets, preferably pink. Guys must wear these in the black variety.

Girls should wear jeans with an enlarged, sparkling belt buckle, large sunglasses (even if it's cloudy), and carry a large pink bag over one shoulder, big enough to carry three bowling balls, just in case. Underneath they must wear two collared shirts, one must be flipped up at all times to keep necks warm.

For guys, a third collared shirt is necessary for special occasions. Sweatshirts may be tolerated, but the sweatshirt must be one that you bought your freshmen year with a Loyola logo on it.

Ugg Boots will be required at all times, unless going to the FAC, in which you may wear white and grey shoes with netting, patches, stripes, rubber springs, and as many other unnecessary components as possible. Guys may wear ragged brown shoes in the snow and duct taped flip flops when the weather gets above 40 degrees. Girls must not know their natural hair color, or they will be put on social probation. Guys are not permitted to cut their hair...unless they are forced by gunpoint during one of their breaks.

To keep hair under control, they may wear a backwards dirty college hat, preferably colleges they've never been to or attended.

We all must also find common bonds to destroy diversity. We must all like Dave Mathew Band, OAR, Kanye, Jack Johnson, Fall Out Boy, and any hip hop song with a chorus that tells you to do a "dance move."

Students biggest concerns will not be what is happening in the world, instead, we will worry about whose accent is the strongest, how early in the week we can get away with drinking, how expensive Primo's food is, and who can say "I'm soooooo tired, I have so much work" the most in any given day.

I understand this is going to be hard for all of us to adapt, but if we stick together, we can chop this diversity problem at the root.

Sam Weir '08
Undeclared

We should hang out more!

No, really!

LOYOLAGREYHOUND.COM

THE GREYHOUND

LOYOLA COLLEGE IN MARYLAND'S STUDENT NEWSPAPER

HTTP://WWW.LOYOLAGREYHOUND.COM

TERENCE J. FOY	"J" STANDS FOR JIGGA
DAN VERDEROSA	FORMIDABLE DO-ER OF THE NASTY
CHRIS BLOCH	WE STILL DON'T KNOW WHO HE IS
MARY SCOTT	LOST THE CIVIL WAR
MATT LINDEBOOM	THE BEST THING SINCE ADULT DIAPERS
DAN CORRIGAN	10TH LEVEL WIZARD
MIKE TIRONE	JUST WANTS TO DANCE
DAVE LOMONICO	TIRONE'S MINION
ALEXANDRA DYKHOUSE	CAMERAS STEAL YOUR SOUL
JOHN CARTER	WE MISS DASILVA
L' OREAL THOMPSON	READS GOOD
NICK BROWN	ASS IN ABSENTIA
KEVIN DUGAN	LOVED "FROM JUSTIN TO KELLY"

EDITORIAL POLICY

The writing, articles, pictures, layout and format are the responsibility of The Greyhound and are obviously poorly researched and badly written. Signed columns represent the opinions of the author(s) and usually suffer from a lack of truthiness. Unsigned columns that appear in the editorial section are the opinion of the majority of the Editorial Board and are completely infallible.

The Greyhound reserves the right to edit or reject any content it deems stupid. Letters to the editor will be printed anonymously, but anonymous letters are for pansies.

4501 N. Charles St.
Bellarmino Hall 01
Baltimore, MD 21210

greyhound@loyola.edu
greyhoundads@loyola.edu

Newsroom: (410) 617-2282
Opinions: (410) 617-2509
Sports: (410) 617-2695
Advertising: (410) 617-2867
Fax: (410) 617-2982

Still haven't been sued for libel.

Member:

KCM
campus

AP
ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS

U-WIRE

LOYOLAGREYHOUND.COM

POLL QUESTION OF THE WEAK:

Where's my sock?

Log on today and vote!!

- Under the bed.
- On the lampshade.
- If it were up your nose you'd know!
- I stole it, and I'm wearing it.

Last issue's poll: (results not scientific)
A sphincter says what?

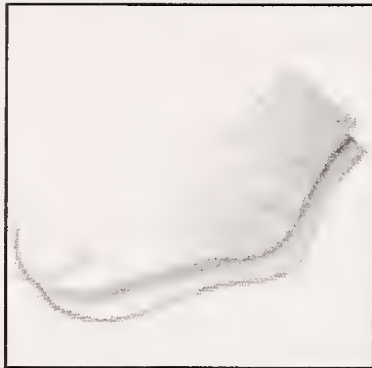

- What? (75%)
- Do you think I'm an idiot. (25%)

On the Quad

What do you think about Tort Reform?

BY TWO GIRLS WITH A PASSION FOR INANIMATE
OBJECTS

"Soft money needs to go."
A pair of socks

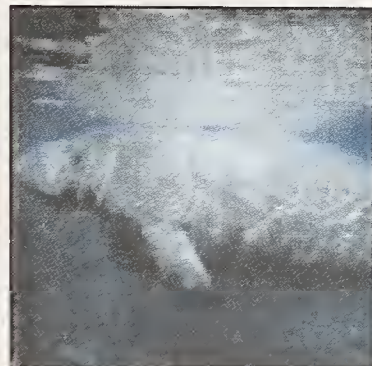

"I don't know. It seems sincere, but they always let loopholes slip through."
A Chair

"Don't care for it, it's all probably a left wing conspiracy led by that Kennedy fella'."
A Banjo

"Eh, I can deal with endless donations from private firms to political candidates. It's more American."
A coffee mug.

"I'm a manatee."
A Manatee

Do you want to be in "On The Quad?" Look for Ali Dykhous on the quad.

The final, greatest idea on security ever

OK, it's time to get serious: crime at Loyola must be stopped! Too many sleek, sexy iPod's have been nabbed from unattended jackets in Upper Primo's, too many unlocked cars driven off by masked hoodlums, too many drunk and stumbling York-road goers have been mugged, and way, way too much hassle has befallen the innocent, salt-of-the-earth students of Loyola. We pay close to $45,000 a year (it sounds better every time we say it) to come to this institution of higher learning. It's time to start spending that money better, Loyola! We have a security problem at our school; and to solve it, we need to start thinking BIGGER.

DR. I. M. PREGGARS

"Should we add more police?" you may ask.

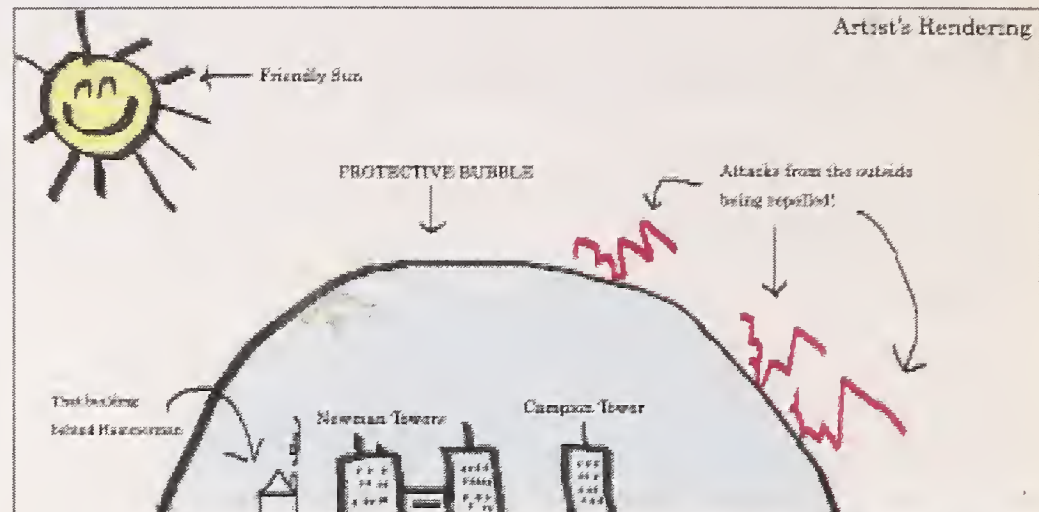

"Cameras? Do we need more cameras?" others might wonder.

"Guard dogs! Loyola needs Nicholas to patrol the quad at night!" the worried will demand.

Nay, I offer a different and much better plan to safe guard Loyola's beloved students. We must divert money away from LoPo and security camera's, and instead, fund the building of a gargantuan protective Alaska. For some extra flair, we'll place the bears on diamond studded, leather leashes —this way, every passerby will see that we bubble around Loyola. This bubble should be made of combination of the expensive new age plastics, metals, and fibreglasses; it should be possible to see it from outer space. And to show outsiders that we mean business, we must purchase Alaskan grizzly bears to guard every entrance! No one will mess with grizzly bears, especially ones from have the best guard bears in Maryland, possibly the entire country.

MATT LINDEBOOM/THE GREYHOUND

It's time we started taking our security seriously. To stop crime and to keep our minds uncompromised, every outside influence should be kept out. We must make this much talked about, "Loyola bubble" a very expensive, physical bubble!

Spring dating tips: some Ol' Fashion Lovin'

It used to be that when one went off to college he or she could most certainly count on experiencing one thing and that is the

1) "Set the date for a time 30 minutes before you actually plan to arrive."- This will leave him or her wanting you more.

how you normally eat.

4) "Leave your cell phone on, and if someone calls don't excuse yourself.

Allowing your date to listen in on your conversation will allow him or her to get to know you." -It's best if you have your ex place a call to your phone, this is a great way to test your potential boyfriend or girlfriend's patience.

As a matter of fact, to best test your date's suitability, let them speak to your ex. That way the new and the old can compare notes.

5) "You must be fair. Be sure to split the bill 50-50."- There is no shame in sharing the bill. Place your portion of the bill on the table, look straight across the table, and say "Your go."

Your go.

TOMMURROW

realities of dating. Dating and studying seem to go hand and hand, and are both essential parts of the college experience.

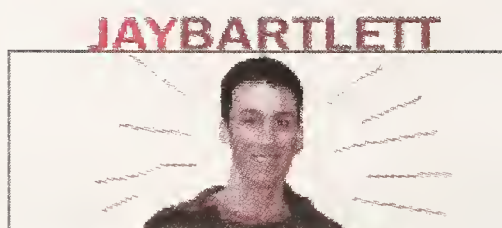

Recently it's dawned on me that I know a lot of beautiful women, and I mean a lot. It seems however that I had been relegated to that all too popular "friend" position.

You know what that means, right? It means that I'm often labeled the "marrying type" and often said to be ideal for long term relationships, but that has negative short term implications. So I endeavored to find out what it would take for me to have a "great date."

Below are some tips I received from people who are more in the know. Here are some of the tips that I've been given:

Bring the bar back seniors

New entrance signs? Screw that. The senior class gift should be something truly reflective of the spirit of Loyola, leaving future classes with a real impression of our experience here.

Democrats Ho!

That's why we need to bring back Rootie Kazootie's. And put it in Sellinger Hall.

What better way is there to maintain the legacy of the Class of 2006? Is there really anything that says "Loyola" better than this classiest of bars?

Fortunately for all of us, I've been in contact with several people regarding this matter, and I'm happy to report that this plan is ready to move forward. Here's what has developed so far:

The school's going to clear out some space in Sellinger because, frankly, how many business students need that place for studying anyway? The bar might actually get a few of them to enter the building for once.

Campus police has graciously agreed to enforce the strict 16 and up age limit, so that the proper atmosphere will be protected. They will also arrest anyone playing something other than Bon Jovi and Journey on the jukebox.

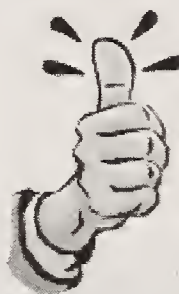

Student Life has already assured me that the rooms reserved for this project won't be double-booked for some other use. Given their track record, I think we can all breathe easy about this: there DEFINITELY won't be a problem now that they're on the case. On a similar note, I also got the people from the Bookstore to take care of ordering the beer and liquor. Who else could be trusted to make sure those supplies don't show up 2 months late?

Sodexo has even agreed to handle the daily operations of the bar. With their great reputation for customer service and low prices, I can picture that warm $9.00 Natty Lights served in used plastic cups already.

While there was one objector to my plan, some guy named Patrick D., he's gone now: sent back to his native land of Cowardia after he tried to submit an anonymous protest.

So, I'll be coming around the dorms accepting donations to make sure this foolproof plan is carried out for good of the school. Please make your checks out to the "Committee About Seniors' Heritage," or just use its acronym, "C.A.S.H." Thank you for your cooperation; we'll bring back those fishbowls soon enough.

THUMBS

Us!

You!

Administration remains unsupportive of aspiring artists

BY CLEMENT GREENBERG
STAFF ART CRITIC

The Administration continued its policy of repression toward young campus artists this week as it formally condemned the impromptu murals which have been cropping up on the base of the pedestrian foot bridge and some campus buildings. The works of art have been appearing at irregular intervals on sites throughout campus for roughly the last month, and to their own chagrin Campus Stormtroopers have been unable to capture the free spirits behind the masterpieces.

The statement was issued yesterday via e-mail by Rev. Joseph Goebbels, S.J., chief of Public Relations and Inter-Campus Harmony. "We will not tolerate this kind of rampant graffiti, as it undermines the authority of the Administration. From here onward, all spray paint and other art materials are officially contraband, and any person caught with such materials on campus will be savagely beaten and left in the dumpsters behind Newman Towers. If this defacement of college property continues, then curfews will be instituted."

From an artistic standpoint, the works in question thus far have exhibited a style somewhere close to the high Modernism of the New York school of abstract expressionism.

However, they manage to incorporate text and images in creative ways, the content of which clearly displays iconoclastic tendencies. These rebel artists have created a new synthesis of ab ex styles with a postmodern sensibility. The result can only be described as staggering in its impact.

FILE PHOTO
An unidentified student expressed himself on the side of the library last Wednesday. The administration has explicitly condemned such works, once again furthering their policy of censorship.

The Administration, however, persists in its attempts to squelch the ambitions of these budding Pollocks and de Koonings. When asked to comment on the enforcement of these new prerogatives, Commander of Campus Stormtroopers, Ernst Rohmer, stated: "I guarantee you that we will find the culprits, and when we do THEY WILL ALL BE ELIMINATED!!! (insert maniacal laughter here)." Rohmer's subsequent fit of hysteria was interpreted as a refusal to answer any more questions.

Students seem to feel differently about the matter. When approached on the quad, one commented, "Yeah man. I mean, umm, their just, like, expressing themselves. Man." Another chimed in: "This is just like that time in the 90s that they tried to get that one painter guy to not exhibit that painting of Mary in New York...what was his name...Giuliani, the Italian painter. That's it." When asked what they thought of the artists' ab ex tendencies, a student responded, "Oh yeah, I tried that shit at a party once. It was totally trippin'."

Clearly this issue of censorship will not just disappear.

Sam Jackson to star in "Snakes on a Plane"

BY PETER POTAMUS
ALL YOUR BASE ARE BELONG TO US

If there is justice in this world, Martin Scorsese will win an Oscar for this film. In "Snakes on a Plane," the trailer for which I viewed early this morning, I think Scorsese plays the lovable CGI kitten Lil' Tony, whose congenial tone and winning smile hide a troubled past of neglect and abuse.

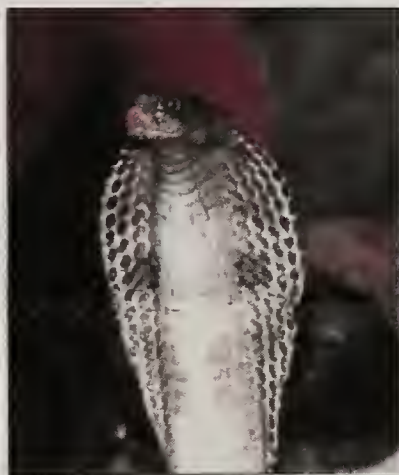

Samuel L. Jackson, in his best performance since 1998's "Deep Blue Sea," apparently co-stars as Sam-El Jackson, a down-and-out ex-con sent to assassinate Lil' Tony during a commercial flight to the fictional city of Boz Pity. Both characters' lives are soon turned upside down as Sparky—a venomous cobra supposedly voiced by Ray Romano—escapes from his wicker basket and accidentally kills the pilot, sending the plane into a stall.

The film, which promises to be substantially longer than the Samuel L. Jackson (left) is slated to star in a new film with a snake (right). The movie is rumored to be an unparalleled cinematic triumph, and we look forward to watching it win an Oscar in next year's Academy Awards, as well as becoming initiates in the new religion which will inevitably be formed to worship it.

trailer, focuses on the shaky partnership Sam-El, Lil' Tony, and Sparky must forge in order to fend off a posse of evil snakes, known as The Sharks, and restore order to the plane's citizens (for it is a nation-state.) In the end, the three unlikely heroes leave behind much more than a plane full of dead people. But I can't tell you what.

transcend the boundaries imposed by a restraining order?

Cancer (June 22-July 22) Ironically enough, you should make a doctor's appointment this week...

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Complex relationships and politics at your office will accidentally cause NORAD to go directly to Defcon 2.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll discover the meaning of life this week. Unfortunately, you won't be able to reveal it, seeing as Google already owns the copyright.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may want to begin considering asking out that girl from down the hall. If you're nervous, the stars recommend the National Geographic documentary "Mating Rituals of the Wild Orangutan" as a handy reference.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) All we can say is that we are so, so sorry.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Sagittarius is on vacation this week, and famed rapper Fifty Cent is standing in as his substitute. He says he's "gonna pop a cap in yo' ass."

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Look behind you. OK, now run.

Aquarius (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) The stars grow weary of mapping out your day-to-day life, so this week your fate will be determined by an interstellar game of craps. Virgo rising has just laid down twenty-to-one that you're going to have an unpleasant encounter with the front end of a Coach bus, so I'd start crossing at the crosswalk if I were you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) As you flee the scene of the bank robbery you'll reflect on how, despite what your father always told you, good things come to those who take matters into their own damn hands.

Cap'n Kirk gets Korped

BY TOM "SHAKESPEARE" KORP
EXPERT IN THE EVALUATION OF MELODY, HARMONY, AND LYRICS, AS WELL AS BEING GENERALLY MORE INTELLIGENT THAN YOU ARE

William Shatner—Has Been
2004 Shout! Factory Records
Score: Q out of 5, where 0 ≤ Q ≤ 5

Oh, Bill Shatner -- what won't you do? You've explored space as Captain James T. Kirk, wrestled Romulans and bedded blue women from other worlds. You've run a law firm, only not in the real world; that's never really been your forte. You've written books, some of which have had little or nothing to do with "Star Trek." You've helped market on-line travel merchants in the weirdest of ways. Hell, you've even ridden on a carousel with Peter Griffin!

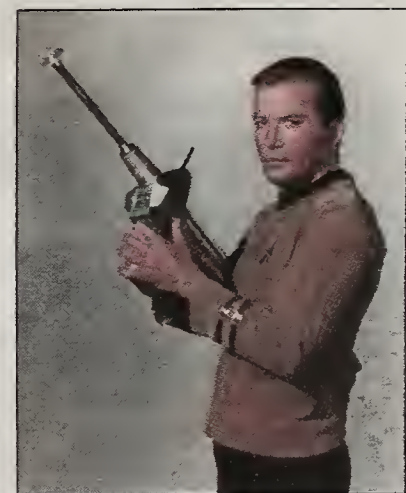

Yes, Mr. Shatner, yours is a charmed life. Case in point, your 2004 album, Has Been, in which you collaborated with the likes of Ben Folds, Joe Jackson, Lemon Jelly, Aimee Mann, Henry Rollins(!), and Brad Paisley. Your spoken word performances have been much improved since your first album, 1968's The Transformed Man, primarily by the intuitive pop-rockery of Ben Folds. Believe me, Mr. Shatner, that man can write a hook. And you -- you, good sir -- are nothing short of a genius.

Ain't hungry no mo'

Renowned restaurant reviewer Devon Lynch-Huggins fell ill last week after braving Primo's Grill and "enjoying" the cod sandwich. It's not so much enjoyment anymore, huh?

Lynch-Huggins promises to be back soon with more delicious goodness.

Just listening to your cover of Pulp's "Common People" (complete with vocal accompaniment by Joe Jackson) was enough to convince me that Has Been never was, but is full of might be. The album is pure explosive potential, as evidenced in the duo rant with Henry Rollins, "I Can't Get Behind That." Then

The magnificent William Shatner has once again put forth a new musical effort.

there's "Together," the super-personal haiku dedicated to your wife. Or the heartwarmingly apologetic letter to your daughters, "That's Me Trying."

Sure, Ben provides the piano, the hooks and the melody. But he's just along for the ride. You see, Bill, it's all you -- you're the heart and soul of Has Been. Rock on, Bill. Rock on, and prosper.

DEVON LYNCH-HUGGINS

HUNGRY HUNGRY HUGGINS

Aries (March 21-April 20) This week, you should remember to check the expiration dates on milk cartons before drinking them.

Taurus (April 21-May 20) So remember that time you borrowed a pen from that guy in philosophy

Horoscopes

By Vickie Valencourt

class and forgot to give it back? Well, due to a few kinks in the cosmic karma system, you're going to get your comeuppance ten thousand fold. It will involve three years in the state pen and an overly-friendly cell mate named "Big Bob."

Gemini (May 21-June 21) You'll soon find yourself embroiled in a court battle that will have ramifications for the legal community for years to come. The question at hand: does love

Jimmy Patsos fired for laundry list of reasons and costs

By T BILLZ
EDITOR OF COOLNESS

The two-year reign of Loyola men's basketball coach Jimmy Patsos ended abruptly last Tuesday as Athletic Department officials informed the charismatic figure of his dismissal due to an extremely excessive dry cleaning bill and habitual courtside floor repairs on the Loyola College tab.

Patsos has made a habit of sweating through the entirety of his suit, shirt, jacket and pants during every game this season, as well as several games last season. Therefore, in light of receiving this year's drying cleaning bill, the Athletic Department was toying with the idea of having Patsos resigning.

Days later, the bill for floor repairs to the area in front of the Loyola bench at Reitz Arena—a result of Patsos' nonstop running, scuffling, and jumping on the sideline—appeared on the third floor of the College Center. With the evidence mounting, Patsos' back was against the wall and his firing finalized, effective immediately.

In an official release, Athletic Director Joe Boylan attributed the decision to the "outrageous surcharges and costs to the Athletics budget, as a result of Patsos' actions as head coach, that we as an Jesuit institution could not justify."

The statement did not disclose exact figures, but his disapproval of Patsos' actions were clearly stated in Tuesday's announcement.

"Patsos has been stirring the pot ever since he has been here at Loyola with his crazy antics and questionable manner on and off the court," Boylan said. "His passion has been doubted, but this was the tipping point—his Yorktown, some might say—with the all of these side costs for his actions. Don't even get me started on his glandular problems."

The Athletic Department will begin the search for a new head coach for the men's team, and assistant Brian Blaney will take over as head coach on an interim basis.

"I always told Jimmy that his body odor and distemper were going to come back to bite him," Blaney said. "I never knew how great it would turn out for me though. Thank God I didn't buy him that wholesale box of Old Spice."

One name that has been mentioned throughout basketball circles is former Loyola and current Wake Forest coach Skip Prosser. Prosser, whose program was hit hard by the early departure of Chris Paul.

Also mentioned are ex-Cincinnati coach Bob Huggins, former Temple coach/strangler Don Chaney, and Iowa State party-boy and coach Larry Eustachy. Huggins, who was dismissed amid a DUI scandal, has learned his lesson and brings with him prep star O.J. Mayo. The Greyhound isn't really sure how Chaney is still alive, and Eustachy is due.

"Any of these guys would be a dream for us," Marty Kelly, Director of Something Athletic, said. "At least Bobby Huggins' sweaters or Don Chaney's towels wouldn't be a hassle to wash."

Patsos was asked to give his comments to The Greyhound about his firing but refused, stating he was too busy watching "The Sopranos."

NANCY PERRY

Head coach Jimmy Patsos is out at Loyola and the only question is who is going to be our new homeboy?

LC finally gets football

By SCOTT JERGENSEN

THAT'S WHAT I CALL A SACK-LUNCH

Crab cakes and football; that's what Maryland does. And now it's what Loyola does.

For the first time in school history, Loyola will have a football program, with real helmets, pigskins and everything.

Starting in the fall of 2007, the Greyhounds will have their first legitimate football team, the culmination of a new sports complex to be completed at the same date.

With Loyola having 14 Division-I sports, football should slide right in. The Athletic Department is still in the works of finding a coaching staff, but recruiting will begin in this fall.

Junior Pete Flynn, who led his class to an FFC victory this fall, has expressed interest.

"I think I have a good relationship with high school programs up and down the East Coast," Flynn said.

For Loyola's opening season, they will be in the extremely tough Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference.

The new uniforms have been designed and will be released to the media next week during a press conference with Assistant Athletic Director Jose Freezin.

In an effort to create a buzz around the program, College officials have decided to lay green Field Turf in the new facility, in accordance with school colors. The idea was inspired by Boise State's blue turf.

Loyola football will begin tryouts to any students interested in playing next fall at the playground across the street from Newman Towers. Don't be late.

NOT YOU

The Marching Flock is so hot that HOVA himself had to scoop them up.

Marching Flock finds a new gig

By THE DUDE

ILLMATIC

The Marching Flock of the Poly/Western High School, who performs at home basketball and lacrosse games for Loyola, has signed a 12-year, $52 million contract with the future Brooklyn Nets franchise headed by rap mogul Sean Carter.

Loyola will no longer have the upbeat and motivating chants such as "Get Up" during Greyhound sporting events. Carter found the Flock last year and attended every Hounds' home basketball game this season to ensure the quality of his investment.

The Flock, headed by Silky Johnsten, will finish out the season playing at all of the lacrosse games, but will be the lead musical group at the up-and-coming Brooklyn Nets starting in 2008.

Beloved by everyone who has ever attended a Greyhounds basketball or lacrosse game, the Flock has been playing at Loyola for two years, and will be greatly missed by all of the Loyola community.

As for the Flock themselves, they couldn't be happier about getting out of the contract with Loyola.

"I can't wait to finish playing for these fools at Loyola," Johnsten said. "We will be making large bills at this new gig for Jay-Hova"

With the departure of the band, Loyola must now find a new provider of musical masterpieces during timeouts, halftimes, and goals. Early conenders include The Brian Setzer Orchestra, as well as Russell Crowe's new band, 30 Odd Foot of Grunts.

"When we sing 'Get Up' at all the games, we don't really care if they do or not," said Mel O'Dee, who is trombonist for the Flock. "We just go to all of the games because we get good seats. But in Brooklyn, well Vince is going to be getting up. What more do we need?"

Johnsten, who has been leading the dancing for the Flock for five years, has now struck a deal with rapper Missy Elliot and will be appearing in her new video this summer.

Carter was asked on his thoughts on the acquiring of the Marching Flock saying, "The World's Greatest don't care who I got, they just gotta make money money, make money money money. Plus Beyonce really likes them."

The Flock will perform live for the first time for the Brooklyn Nets once the stadium is built in the place of the BQE.

BEN DOVER

Football. Meat. Beer. Chips. Now Loyola. Great addition.

PAGE VII

www.greyhoundclassy.com

ADVERTISE WITH US

Apartment for rent. Close proximity to scenic New York Rd. Expensive alarm system and guard dogs included. Safety bars on windows.

universal
ADVERTISING

* * * * *

* * * * *

March 28 - April 3

TODAY28	WED29	THU30	FRI31	SAT1	SUN2	MON3
No Scheduled Events	You can't live in the past.	Coffehouse with "Guy playing an acoustic guitar" 9-11pm Reading Room	Debauchery Evergreen Campus, Fell's Point, Greater Baltimore Area	Drinking All Day Swallow's  Drinking All Day Craig's  Drinking All Day Murphy's	Men's Club Badminton Match 10am Reitz Arena SOLD OUT!!!!!!!	All Classes Cancelled

ATTENTION CLUBS & ACTIVITIES: Promote your event here... FREE!*

*Standard Charges Apply

Late night

For me to...
TRIUMPH, THE INSULT COMIC DOG!
www.loyola.edu/notlatenight

Thursday
March 30

COFFEEHOUSE!

FREE
 Starbucks &
 desserts!
 Featuring...
 Dustin Diamond,
 a.k.a. "Screech Powers"
 Reading Room
 9PM – 12AM

It's Thursday!

You have school tomorrow. Do your homework.

PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES SHOULD CONSULT STEPHEN LYNCH'S SONGS.

Friday
March 31

MUD WRESTLING
ON THE QUAD!

FREE! Sign up in Student Activities.
 T-Shirts for the winners!
 6PM – 10PM

TRIUMPH THE INSULT COMIC DOG!

Don't piss this canine off!
 Entrance is free with an NCAA Tournament
 bracket that has at least two Final Four teams!
 McGuire Hall
 9PM

MIDNIGHT
BREAKFAST!

See Saturday's details.

Saturday
April 1

Super Troopers*
Movie Night &
Maple Syrup
Chugging Contest

A Little Siblings Weekend event!
 Montpelier, Vt.
 8PM – 11PM

Theology really on tap!

Come get down Jesus
 style!
 Jes. Rez.
 11PM – 4AM

MIDNIGHT
BREAKFAST!

$5 Cover, ladies get in free before 11.
 HASH BROWNS ALL
 NIGHT!
 Best pancakes in town!
 21 to eat, 18 to party.